SENATOR HILL has an eye on the presidency. If he brings us into the union this year he can confidentially expect our support in 1896.

ONE of the most thankless jobs just new is that of Congressman. Our own delegate can testify to the truth of this assertion. He is said to have turned gray headed trying to please all of his constituents during the past six months.

THE latest news from Washington makes the probabilities of statebood more certain. Every indication points to the rejection of the nomination of Peckham and a compact between Senator Hill and friends of statehood whereby he will throw enough votes to our side to admit us in return for votes against Peckham's confirmation, At any rate, the New York senator has us in tow and can pull us through.

FROM the latest information it is altogether probable that Judge Sloan will not be here to open court on the 20th. His commission expires on the 19th. From the recent action of President Cleveland in reappointing U. S. Marshal Gard in Southern Cali fornia in order that there might be no vacancy in the office it appears that when the four years or term of appointment is up, such officer cannot hold over that time. Postmaster Harwood's commission reads that his term of office is for four years. The four years are up March 1st, and he is of the opinion that he will not be the postmaster after that time unless like the case of Gard he is reappointed.

THE Star thinks that the probabilities are that Judge Williams will follow Judge Barnes' plan of bringing a clerk with to Tucson. In support of this theory the Star says:

Inasmuch as the clerk of a court holds somewhat confidential relations with the judge, about as much as a private secretary does to his employer, Judge Williams will not be influenced much by petitions and "great polls," Judge Barnes brought his clerk from St. Louis, and Judge Fitzgerald, his predecessor, installed a Mississippi man in the responsible position. is a case wherein the right man for the right place must be had, and it would not be strange if the new judge were to follow the examples of Judge Barnes and Judge Fitzgerald.
